April 23. 46.

Dear René so sorry I missed you when you came last Wednesday but I was over at Brockley visiting my father's grave (ocd Mich. Royde-Smyth did make a good job of the inscription – the whole stone looks awfully genuine & good – the only real art-work in Brockley I imagine) & seeing my sister. I fear I shall miss you also this Friday as I'm going, I hope, on that afternoon to stay with Harman, the long-delayed visit,

I do hope you all had a happy Easter.
Give my best love to everybody & special greetings to Joan & yourself of course.
I don't suppose I shall be at Harman's more than a few days so will shall see you soon I hope. Prudence may come down for a day or so to Billericay too - I gave her your message. The left Book of this year right disappointed was lent to me because it contained what was supposed to be a refutation of O. Spengler. Needless to say it was only displayed the crass imperceptibility of the writer of the article & failed altogether to show any appreciation of the kind of thing Spengler is trying in. Much love to Dear Petra much love Dai.

Sorry about feature misprints on other side - I wanted to write the word DVX but put an X instead of a V - a half-up = half.
But it conveys my caste greetings to you all.
